

This Old Column

Indianapolis Historic Preservation Commission

May, 2003

Michael Bivens is New Architectural Reviewer with IHPC

Michael Bivens, AIA, has accepted the new architectural reviewer position with the IHPC. Michael is a licensed architect and received his Bachelor of Architecture and of Science in Environmental Design from Ball State University. Previously, he served as a project manager with Browning Day Mullins Dierdorf Architects and with Rowland Design, Inc. Michael also brings extensive preservation experience to his new position. His previous preservation experience includes a reuse and marketing study of Meridian Row, four adjacent commercial buildings located in the Wholesale District; providing construction administration for the Hilton Garden Inn located in a historic Monument Circle building; and serving on the design team for the renovation and addition of the Indiana Business College formerly located in a historic building on East Washington Street.

Michael will be joining Meg, Kipp and Amy in providing architectural assistance and technical advice to the commission and public regarding the restoration, rehabilitation or preservation of historic structures within Indianapolis' 13 locally designated historic districts.

Please join our staff in welcoming Mike and feel free to contact him with questions at 317-327-4460.